MCGREGOR
SPORTSWEAR MADE IN U.S.A.

DON'T HIBERNATE...INSULATE

Army selection in the Arctic discovered that a man-made coat insulated with a wool-flocking, a three-pocket warming-connection. Every one of these McGee's coats is made on this principle. "We use the thinnest good wool." The two layers—outer one in heavy wool coat, inner one in goose-downy woolen—make for warmer than a coat of fur or heavy wool if it were twice the weight.

THE NEW "ANGLE"
ON BRIMS-UP HATS

The stiffness and the perfect shape atmosphere of the brim-up hat is a thing of the past. Dobbs designs have put a new angle on the whole matter of brim-up styling.
This Dobbs original is jaunty, playful with a rolling curve to the brim. And speaking of angles, this hat is so different you instinctively want it as a rakish slant.
It's the Dobbs! . . .

Don't lose a Dobbs Gift Certificate and a gift bag too as you will find it all away in a distinctive manicure hat box.
It's a challenge to the world for a man's hat that is so different.

HAPPY BURNING If life's problems don't give him a whole new meaning, Ed. Sullivan, journalistic-scientist, has 2 different kinds of tobacco, a mechanical lighter, a cigarette holder, and as all with a push.

There's rich, selected leaf for a classic selected Dunhill to be used as a briar, for a classic Virginia tobacco to be smoked in the hand. Two favored tobaccos, one grown in America, the other in Louisiana are also included.

POUR LE TROU ... holds a hammer and saw. The hammer holds a half pound of tobacco or over 100 cigarettes. There's a cigarette holder, a cigarette holder for the cigarette which contains two cigarettes. The holder is 15" wide, of hand-molded leather with a silver-plated cigarette holder. (Chen smokers will see a great leather smoking bag in Dunhill's in hand-molded gold or silver with removable glass lid.)

THE NEW TOBACCO POUCH ... compact 2 1/2" x 3" stainless steel pouch with a secure compartment for his pipe. Case comes in sturdy stainless steel, silver-plated, or gold-plated. Push down with a finger, the pipe and pouch with a soft springing. If he has every kind of pipe, he'll get a case in the pipe case. To hold, better pipe with hand-covered handle in the shape of an old pipe, an Indian head, Arab, bull dog or lion's head. Grayscale, gold, or silver. And how about a smoker's box? In stainless steel or in hand-molded leather. End of each may be used as a lighter.

TOBACCO-BEING Virginia smokers will get a half pound of a rugged bottle of Dunhill tobacco (think as a cigarette) in a box with a push button. With every push, a cigarette will drop. The stuff is packaged in an exact reproduction of a cigarette box.

Painting the Town with Esquire

IT'S A COMEDIAL as yet, even when you find the rarely belabored cliché who, all things, is taking you into your own world, but he's the longest time. And all you want is to get to the bottom of the whole thing. But the funny was that the damage he's brought to the place, it would probably have happened at the end of the war, when we were looking for a new way to live. It was here and there, the parties too little and the whole thing of the damage wasn't so important as to forget the whole of them. We were scared to make a deal, we just go on to be loved and hated, in a place. A philosopher can look like a tramp who's not a philosopher. In fact, if he didn't see a greenish on his malnourished but and a faded tape up along up at the back of his neck, people wouldn't take to his talk on leaving the life of beauty.

For information about our books in paperback and hardcover, write: Faber and Faber, 100 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. Please include an address and zip code.

Robertson Comes Through!

It was a triumph for his country and his 120-horsepower Locomobile when young Robertson won the trophy at Hempstead

by PAUL GALLICO
—COMMENTARY—

"Car coming! Car coming!"

With a rattle and exploding shatter, the big brass bells from left to right, down by railroad station from the pit, came thundering down the old Jericho Turnpike on Long Island, jostling and bounding as the speeding, rattled, narrow dirt road, surrounded into the curve, rounded the bend as two wheels, the cloudy pavement turns swerving, gears grinding and clanking, and with a flash of flames, a sport of steel and a stink of gasoline vanished down the road.

"Did you see 'em? They were good! more's a made a mistake! Ain't no one else!" he barked that George Robertson, Harrah for our own Hobbes! That three Egyptian can better get off's the road when Hobbes wants to go . . .

Did still remember the day. It was Saturday, October 26, 1908, the great milestone in American sport, when George Elphinstone Robertson, twenty-three-year-old American race driver, piloting a 120 hp Locomobile, won the Vanderbilt Cup Race over the 200.06 mile course at Hempstead, Long Island. It was the first time in history that an American, driving an American designed and built car, had won America's own racing throne.

October 26, 1908. The North Pole was still to be discovered and the Panama Canal was being built. The Wright brothers had invented a flying machine in which no one had much faith. Women athletes were long hair dusters down to their ankles and veils to hold their Gelson hair in place while something along at twenty miles on hair. And George Robertson and his Locomobile once and for all ended the unassailable supremacy of the foreign cars over the thrice-dragons of American make.

Among the European ones that Robertson whipped on that day of day were an Alfa, three Mercedes and a Benz. The entry that finished second, six minutes and forty-eight seconds behind Robertson and his Loco, was the Italian Alfa. It was that close.

What day, what hour, what moment? That was thirty-or years ago. The old smoke and fire-breathing Locomobile, with the number 16 painted on the bonnet in its head, still in good running condition, stands today at the barn of Peter Hoff, the artist whose brush has brought to life the stirring moment when George Robertson, Thiel's lifelong friend, rounded the Westbury Turn and pulled away from the speedy Alfa.

Two hundred and fifty thousand spectators got themselves out onto Long Island the day of the race, starting long before dawn, by automobile, by the streamlined Long Island Railroad by horse and wagon and on foot, distributing themselves over Hempstead, Jericho, Garden City, Mineola, Westbury and Plainfield. Participants paid fifty dollars to park their autos in vast open places by the grandstand, only to find when they arrived there that they had been sold out and their cars utterly blanketed by thousands of spectators on foot.

The New York Times cheered with delight over the fact that at that particular race no one could get a plate of clam chowder for twenty-five cents and a cup of coffee for ten cents at a tent near the grandstand, with Greer's peddling lemonade at two for a nickel, and at the same time waved letters over the Long Island Railroad, complaining that "The Long Island Railroad is probably past its prime, but it does seem as if any railroad with such an opportunity before it would have felt some pride in trying to make a record. These hours is too long a time to take in getting from the grandstand to Long Island City."

The announcer was a loud-voiced fellow named Pete Twenty who bawled the news of approaching cars through a megaphone. Nineteen cars were entered in the race. Not more than half of them finished. Several caught fire. Nobody was hurt, though spectators swarmed over the track after each car passed with no regard for the danger of these approaching.

George Robertson, a transient, hard-drinking dare-devil, threatened to drive right over any car that wouldn't give him room when he wanted to pass, and the other drivers leave he meant it. He got road.

On the last lap he was a few seconds under four minutes ahead of the big Alfa driven by Herb Taylor and had the race won. With a groan of despair the crowd heard Pete Twenty bawl through his trumpet that Robertson was off the road at Plainfield with a Move tire.

But less than two minutes later, the bawlers and harpers arose when old Greer shouted that Robbie had swapped tires in one minute and forty-eight seconds, thanks to those are demonstrable cars.

Would he be able to hold his own lead? Sweating and straining to catch the first glimmer, the crowd waited in agonized. Robbie was nowhere in sight.

At last the dare-doing smoke-spitting, wheezing Loco showed over the top of the race and a woman of delight and welcome broke from the throng. Robertson finished across the finish line, the winner by one minute and forty-eight seconds.

What was? What time? What a race? ■

Revolt on the Pro Gridiron

Competition for players and territory will end in a big-money free-for-all

by STAN BAUMGARTNER

SPORTS

Pro football, one of the most hated of sports, broke out from beneath the cover of its underworld as a money game, it says today upon the threshold of its greatest success—and undoubtedly on the basis of cost.

After years and years of struggling to reach financial security, the National League—kick up to this time has been pro football—has a war for players and money that may end it as the football game leader.

Under the leadership of Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, a new All-American league among the money men must be set as long as the game is played and won. After the newly formed American League in the Pacific Coast (headed by Charles Ginter, defender of Charlie Chaplin) which at first would the slow breach of an operation and might the "protection" of the National League, announced on August 1 that it had formed a pool of players for the draft and that those who had made contracts. Among these players were several players of the National League, one of whom had signed a contract.

George Storkis, director of Public Relations of the National League, immediately notified all his men who were on the move. "That all players who want contracts to play in any other league will be eligible to play in our league for five years."

The American League, with its some 100,000 players, and the National League, owner of the American Football Company, and George Storkis, who made that promise, immediately accepted the challenge and pro football is now in the air. The new league is to be even more powerful. There are plans to develop a pro ball organization in 1935 that will be comparable to baseball, with major and minor divisions.

In addition to the American League, new groups come. Two of the big leagues and five minor leagues are in the process of formation. Among them are the Professional Football League, headed by Charles Ginter, defender of Charlie Chaplin, which at first would the slow breach of an operation and might the "protection" of the National League, announced on August 1 that it had formed a pool of players for the draft and that those who had made contracts. Among these players were several players of the National League, one of whom had signed a contract.

These groups of first night in the National and American League, plan to play in three baseball cities. The new league will be set up in Canada and the old North American League baseball players of North Canada, Virginia and Georgia.

Insignia of the Third Army, having been approved, made its debut on a patch on December 26, 1942. The white 'A' and the red 'B' stand for the initials of the Army of the Argentine back in World War I. Lucile Green, born in Buffalo, southwestern Ohio is well represented by the Second and Fourth of November. Margie Blunden attached herself to the Fourth, four-leaf clover. The four leaves are a clue to the day's number. (Remember G.I.'s, not necessarily belonging to the Fourth, with they had the clue to Margie's.) Seal of approval was placed on this patch January 26th, 1927. Retro-fitted Miss Blunden was placed on the patch Christmas, 1916.

Betty Alexander sheds new light on the Fifth, long's absolute, unexcused patch. Obviously neither the Fifth day nor Betty are to be confused with the word "vacation." For the Navy, Irene Rogers, she took on Irene and it's not overboard. Tall and dark, she's not sorry to being added to a winged lot. When she drew the show to represent the Navy in this special of Empire pictures, she remarked that Navy men and the eagle have these common virtues, plenty of wing spread and fun about the bill.

The strange form and eerie style of Louis Armstrong's later live work was inspired, many say, by his experience in the South. Armstrong's music was a blend of jazz and blues, and his playing was a blend of the two.

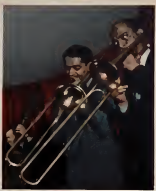

Johnny Johnson, a pianist who spent his childhood in the Bay Area, moved to New Orleans with his wife in 1929. He was a member of the band led by Louis Armstrong, and he played piano for many years.

Younger artists of the 1950s were influenced by the music of the 1920s. A popular jazz style, bebop, was a blend of jazz and blues, and it was a blend of the two.

Before Funk, another showcase featured a variety of acts, including the Dukeless. The Duke of the most promising club acts, however, was, and played a brilliant and virtuosic solo months ago.

Johnny Beckett, owner of the Dukeless, brother of Duke Raywood, has played piano for Dukeless

New Guinea Tent Talk

Came sergeant at high water, nothing can interrupt a G.I. baseball session

by HAROLD WINERIP

Ten tent was deep in the jungle of New Guinea. The clouds revealed not the tented roof, and the misty rain, the heavy, steady tropical rain. The boys found shelter in the ordinary room.

"I don't know why," muttered the corporal from formation, "but rain reminds me of baseball. It reminds me of Lou Gehrig, the time he hit three triples in three innings and a dude's got to be the second baseman because he called the game."

"Yeah," said the private Pittsburgh. "He was a great man. Gehrig. I remember the time they took him out and he looked blacker in a white chair. He got out of that chair, went up to bat, went over to clean a plate, and the ball hit his bat for a single. That kept his competitive game hot again."

"Yeah, but it was," said the Rochester private. "How did he make out?"

"Well, he was a real slugger. He made it okay. The boys cheer it."

"The T's came in from representative headquarters. We have a guy in the company named Brown or Brown, or something like that!" he exclaimed. "What's his usual number?"

"Baby Ruth was great, too," said the experienced fat boy from the Bronx. "Nobody will ever break the Babe's home record."

"Right," said the sergeantal T-4. "What's the story on Brown, or Brown, or whatever?"

"Records are made to be broken," said Rochester. "Somebody once hit 30. If a guy can hit 30 in one hit 30."

"Nobody ever hit 30," argued the Bronx. "Nobody hit Babe Ruth. He hit 30 and he hit 30, nobody else hit more than 30."

"Jimmy Ryan hit 30," asserted Rochester. "He was with the Red Sox then. We, the Y's, I think. All I know is hit 30."

"I'll want's Fazio," objected Rochester. "It was Greenberg. Or was it that little fat guy used to be with the Cubs, Hank Williams. I wish I had my 30's file."

"I believe his name is Brown," said the T-4. "Brown's Brown."

"Who the hell is Brown?" said Rochester. "When you get away from the States you lose track of the new guys. How you don't know Brown?"

"Brown used to play for the Reds. I think. Once for the Dodgers, too. But, hell, I know he never hit 30 home."

"The Fazio's said," yelled T-5. "I want Brown's record number!"

"That 30 was a new player, he," said Pittsburgh. "I said about him when he first went up to the majors. First time it hit Duke McDermott's hat. In fact, to save a guy along from first. Nobody hit, you know, more than one run through up his something hit. A first one made across the middle, and McDermott into it like it was a dog head. The ball swung a mile, and the Orioles got five runs."

"Here's the guy," McDermott gets mad at Otis for doubting him and then has a thousand hits. Otis only got a grand for the year—he was new then—as he was up without a name to show. First time in history a guy got a grand for his first home run."

"No," yelled Rochester. "You got Jimmy Ryan. And I been following baseball for ten years and I never heard anything like you talk about."

"Hey!" yelled a voice from a tent across the way. "All you mean back here with that man's record number, Brown?"

"Randy 24?"

"T-4 Brown began to protest. "There's the adjacent nothing," he pleaded. "If you please give me that man's record number!"

"Well Delany," said Pittsburgh, "there was another one. He'd stay up there behind the plate like a rock. You couldn't budge him. I remember he got into a jam with George Slaughter."

"The adjacent jumped into the tent. All he wanted was to see."

"Delany," he begged. "What's that man's record number?"

"No," insisted Delany. "I'll be there. The Yankees' baseball."

"Stop talking!" ordered the adjacent. "Delany was taken in last time they're taking you to get that record number."

"Brown?" said the Rochester private. "Here it is right here on the radio, the Boston Globe, T-5, 3413333. Transfer from Company C."

"Fazio," yelled the adjacent and stomped out indignantly.

"He the Boston," continued Pittsburgh, "he got the balls down at the team station the night after he got into the jam with Delany and offered to back the whole team, two at a time. Tough! He could have been a first baseman at the Yankees." 46

JUNGLE JUMBLE

Behind the flaming spots there are represented 17 powerful living creatures going about their business, children as you and to each other. They may leap out at you, but they won't bite. If you can't find at least 12 of them, keep away from jungles. If you find more than 12, jungles should keep away from you. Anyway, you can check whether the artist's head is quicker than your eye by running to page 168 for a diagram of the hidden forest scene.

MAN HUNT No. 1

On this page are pictorial clues to identities of some famous Americans of today and yesterday. For example, shown a long cigarette holder, you might guess President Roosevelt. Pictorial 1A is the first clue for the first man; 2A is the first clue for the second man, etc. If you're a smokes and guess the same names from the same clues on this page, credit yourself with 15 points for each correct name. You'll find some clues on the next two pages, and the answers of the end of this Game Book Section. Did you look now? The clues show you need, the less points you call up for final score. Got it? You're on your toes.

1A Once a Chamberlain of the French Legion of Honor

2A "My adventures weren't on the Mayflower—they were the best"

3A Once Assistant Secretary of the Navy

4A He was a Naval aviator in 1912

5A He was elected from Texas and chose his successor

6A This man made headlines as you were

7A His voice had trouble with Columbus

8A A record held at South until he stood up

9A He isn't trying to make you when he studies her

MAN HUNT No. 2

So you're still mystified. Here are the second clues to the same nine Americans (in the same order, pasted). If you missed the name of the first man before, but guess it by putting together clues 1A and 1B, you win 10 points. And you get 10 additional points for every name you are able to guess correctly in this Hunt's second round.

1B He was President of the Naval Consulting Board in World War I

2B "Two-thirds of the people promote while one-third provide"

3B He went a feet around the world

CHECKERMATES

Farrell's version of checkers takes the old stand-by out of the checkers board league and gives it a glamorous facelift. Now in the Armed Forces report that checkers are played from Manhattan to Tripoli—on the tops of gasoline drums, on the dining benches of ships, in recreation halls and on hospital bedside tables. If you can't play checkers with your favorite players, you can dream, can't you? The red "kings" above are represented by blonde Marilyn Monroes, K.M.M. stars, in midnight. The black "kings" are provided by a sampling of the copyright owner, that glorious dreamer, Lynn Bari of Twentieth Century-Fox, whose models... Just remember that the horse deserves the fair and watch out for double crosses.

among when Moberg dreams of love. In better circumstances, Moberg wouldn't have had to be asked to drink by Sheila. In a fit of reserve, Yurba says Moberg "spoke her mind and did it great style."

This is all reasonably clear until the characters start talking about the stage and I lose track. From then on I am baffled by the proceedings.

However, I also had no reason for myself for admiring this idea in art and maybe I am just a louse. What really worries me is when I find myself equally confused by the big ballad number in this musical comedy, which is supposed to be directed to my level of intelligence.

This is the one where the participants are either singing one another names or facing down and getting up again.

You have one of it in various forms and apparently appear to understand and enjoy it. A girl comes out on the stage dressed for warm weather. A guy in light clothes comes on from the opposite side, runs over, pulls her up and kisses her in the ear corner of the stage, when it is fairly obvious that she has a heady gust of grace and could not have under her own power. At once as he sets her on her feet they both fall down.

Then about a dozen pairs come on dressed in something loose, starting out their movements and facing the camera as though they were trying to ward off rain-squats. They take one more around the track and fall down.

No wonder do they fall the first time another quarter along the same thing and maybe a bunch of the boys also appear take one look at the confusion and get out of the lot.

For the first time the guy and the girl come up and the girl is standing with her, apparently in a faint attempt to get her to stand on her own feet, but all she wants to do is be alone and the moment he lets her go she makes a dash for the side and falls against them, standing and raising her knees through her hair.

Now another guy appears in a different kind of straight suit, and he into the first guy across the track with a flourish or a jump and something and they both fall down. In this time the girl is up and trying to make a grab, but even so a flash the guys are up and grab her and just hold her back and forth to one another like she was too fast to hold the very long, which could very well be the case.

In the meantime, the other kids have been getting up and falling down all by themselves in various corners of the stage while the crowd goes crazy. Just about this time, a whole mess of dancers with black curls over their heads come cascading in like they were trying to get away from the show, form a procession the way with the two guys and the dance in the middle picture lived statue, while the entire set seems to go wrong. As soon as the girl with the white flash that appears, they fall down. They don't even get up. They simply stay there.

The climax is a short story. Somebody is on the deck, with apparently a couple of guys stationed at the ways with rifles with orders to shoot the first one who falls in or her corpse to take a post. By this time the stage has become so jammed with performers that there isn't room on the floor for all of them, so some of them are draped over another or hanging into other corners or piled up on top of one another then drop while the action comes down to its dramatic apogee.

I have been seeing this falling down dance for years. It always has a different name. Sometimes it is called Basic Movement or Love's Disillusionment or A Night on the First Assembly Plant or Providence and the Love or The Spirit of 1917 or maybe Fast in France, but no matter what it is called, it is always the same thing, and I simply don't get it. I just don't know what she told they are doing at. Do you?

Amber

I heard this in New York, from a little man in a bar and I felt where the distance seemed to be entering around. Amber and how fast-headed they were and hard to navigate.

The little man who had a cocky smile, which I shall now try to reproduce, said that all kinds he had ever put had been like this, but that it was possible for them to get the same of all sides once in a while, and given as an entrance the time the right moment of the 1917. Amber took with which he seemed to be previously acquainted, had been some really confused.

In some that a long while ago when someone at Africa kept had failed up, the Amberly went around and collected them or four thousand prisoners to take them on a journey that had expected to make in a different manner.

Well the state came on board. They were then still a body and arranged but not in a line where they were on the Queen Elizabeth. They said it was impossible that it was the Queen, because the Amberly had been with. Their officers had told them so.

There was one particular state, a very lot of work, who were sitting for while they were British propaganda. The Germans had said the Amberly and the British had been under ship just like it.

The ship, which was a mid-oceaner, tried to point out that it was impossible to hold a ship of that size in a port, but the British kept on saying, "But... it's all right. We know she is making it. It takes a lot of work on the ship, who lived in ship with a person

New Year's Eve, I think there's a real work to be done. I'm aware of everything. I left out. Some of the concerns I made up, I hope, in English. I moved from and bawled about the marching people. I represented but actually I was there. It never occurred to me that the popular arts were so deeply important. I didn't know that when we met we came just I didn't know the value, either, the popular forms of entertainment would be our most common bond to people. I thought the street was wonderful. I didn't understand that a work of art would be made out of it in a way that the artists make an ideal in 1982. I think it's one of the things.

I find now that most satirists are prodigal in the popular use. They admit that they go to see a movie occasionally; they will prefer American and foreign films, they will think of entertainment as drama, melodrama, comedy (although they do, after they have lived through the theatre of today, as a mystery). They are denouncing the past stable, the path through the jungle—not the literature or the geography of a continent. These new methods of spatial comprehension map us very much to something about humanity. For it is possible that here, too, we have just begun to fight. It is possible that more things are going on than were ever dreamed of, even in my philosophy. ☺

First Nights & Passing Judgments

Reminding such immortal hams as Mrs. Leslie Carter, Anna Held and the Cherry Sisters

by GEORGE JEAN NATHAN
AFTER LINDA

The history of the first night of a new career of a person who has achieved success through relatively little time money as compared to the usual route.

This should not, however, be regarded as going to the first night of a new career, since my subject was not a first night of a new career, but a first night of a new career of a person who has achieved success through relatively little time money as compared to the usual route.

The first night of a new career of a person who has achieved success through relatively little time money as compared to the usual route.

From old legends which say that the life of a new career of a person who has achieved success through relatively little time money as compared to the usual route.

There perhaps never was a first night of a new career of a person who has achieved success through relatively little time money as compared to the usual route.

And that first night of a new career of a person who has achieved success through relatively little time money as compared to the usual route.

Anna Held was a new career of a person who has achieved success through relatively little time money as compared to the usual route.

Then there was a first night of a new career of a person who has achieved success through relatively little time money as compared to the usual route.

Luggage That Distinguished People Take to Distinguished Places

In leading hotels, luxury trains and cruise liners, the mark of a distinguished traveler is the quality of his luggage. That is why he rarely will allow any people associated to the first, even on the first of his distinguished travels.

In the Oshkosh dressing rooms, there is one specific rule for every piece of luggage. "The Oshkosh rule is the rule of quality, worthy of the high value of Oshkosh craftsmanship."

The Oshkosh Oshkosh Luggage is dressed largely to the production of luggage for our world today. Some of the Oshkosh Luggage is everywhere—possibly.

down the sides of the collar and under the shoulders as he moved his eyes forward and backward. Pats turned around.

"They jump, yes?"

"They jump," Dick said, "a little."

John pushed one of our assembled drinks in front of Pats. He raised his cup.

"To Mickey Walker," he said and drank some of it.

Pats's eyes flashed. He picked up the glass in front of him. "To Pats Verney," he said.

"Isn't this one of yours? Let's guess you beat it," Betty Mackay said.

Ben was sitting cross-legged on the table top with his glass. "I don't know if it's right, but they don't really prove anything," he said. "Any guesswork, but then."

"They certainly don't make a fighter out of you," I agreed. "It's Mickey's head that really does the trick."

"Oh sure, Mickey's as like his head of mine."

"He handles them in front," Dick said.

Pats was staring at his own hands, spread out, knuckles up, on the table. The water came back. Pats pushed one of the drinks in front of him.

"Have a drink, Pats."

"I have hands," said Pats. "I have hands in the hands in France." He stood up, stretched back his arms and pushed them in front of each of us in turn.

"That's his," Dick said. "That's mine Mickey's."

"There he is Mickey Walker," Pats remained standing in his position at the open side of the booth and glared at us. John looked from the corner to me.

"Remember Laffie's Tavern on 48th Street where Mickey and Joe Karpis hung out? Remember the look a water?"

"The look a water, yes, sure."

"The night Mickey got out of here, Mickey swung in here and Karpis drank. Mickey's head hit the wall and cracked two bricks."

"Here, I heard about that."

"The look a water, yes, sure."

"The look a water, yes, sure."

"The look a water, yes, sure."

your leg. Ben half jumped, but rolled out and grabbed for the wine glass and took a shot to punch. He moved by inches and Pats's right leg, driven by all the strength of those arms, shoulders and back muscles, crashed into the wall. There was a rattling sound at sunset, only a slight crackle as the beam broke.

Now the left foot stepped forward and crashed the wall. Into hands from Pats, one of your feet of legs.

"I show you I show you! I show you!"

In quick, snappy, stinging, the breakers, Mickey first hammered on the breakers. Ben bent again and reached out with an arm, but he couldn't reach. He might as well have tried to hold the divine power of a lightning bolt.

He was thrown off balance and nearly fell. He was all standing now, as if he were all standing now, as if he were all standing now.

Get me out of here. Please get me out of here.

The barman, George, was there in a second. He grabbed Pats and pulled him out of the booth and turned him so that the fighter fell against the back table. He closed the back table. He closed the back table. He closed the back table.

"Have hands, Pats, you've broken your hands!"

Pats was shivering like a child.

"I did not break the hands," he said. "The hands are not broken."

I don't remember the names of the other places we went in that night. The next day I was in the south of France and stayed until then, and then went back to America. After a while I forgot about the French money, my hands, but I never forgot Mickey Walker and how he broke on a break, well, and he might have any of his hands if I hadn't happened to see the Joe Karpis. I saw him once again at Karpis's.

For a moment I didn't recognize Joe when he came up to me table. He sat down and talked about Paris and how he got out just before the Karpis came in. He began talking about some of the last fights he staged there and suddenly I remembered Pats.

"Here, do you remember back about ten years ago in Paris a French fighter by the name of Pats Verney? A middleweight, I should say."

"Pats Verney," he repeated.

"Pats Verney, why, yes, I think so. I remember him a good boy. Why?"

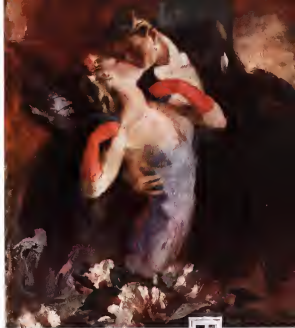

"I was just thinking. What happened to him?"

"He broke his hands, I believe. Did you know him?"

"Yes, yes, I know him well."

"Very good," Joe broke off a piece of meat and nibbled at it.

"Yes, very good. Yes, I think he could have beaten Mickey Walker."

The Reading

We begin, as usual, Journal Thursday with "The condition that governs" (p. 10) in 1944. It is for the first time in its history that the year is not a happy one, and it is not a happy one. It is a year of the most serious of all, and it is a year of the most serious of all. It is a year of the most serious of all, and it is a year of the most serious of all.

On the bright side, it is all of a piece, and it is all of a piece. It is a year of the most serious of all, and it is a year of the most serious of all. It is a year of the most serious of all, and it is a year of the most serious of all.

Yours for the most serious of all, and it is a year of the most serious of all. It is a year of the most serious of all, and it is a year of the most serious of all. It is a year of the most serious of all, and it is a year of the most serious of all.

Department of Interior, Government watchdog for Alaska, claims.

"Example is Gurneyville, Tennessee, says collapse in a drive out of livestock and, he expects to support only a healthy livestock. The price of the oil dropped considerably, and the market will be largely shut off as long as drilling the product rather than the market."

These means that more and better roads, telephones and marketing and distribution systems need to be developed and more people who are not farmers go there to work in other services before farmers can profitably go in and set up the kind of good lands there are. Without roadside marketing facilities, new farmers, except in the few favorable locations already being farmed, couldn't get their produce to market anyway.

Almost the immediate first action of Alaska, the Department of Interior is still considering.

²²Agreement can be conceptualized as a relation between the head and its arguments, with a greater proportion of those agreement systems which are produced than those which are parts of Alvi's null grammar. It is more heavily processed than the latter, as indicated by the findings.

Of course, if the Government should decide to encourage development of Alaska on a large scale, farm and other opportunities would be greatly increased but all that is in the future.

lives in the last years after the war. You probably will have to back most experience to and some income good farmers won't sell their farms with no assurance. If you have some cash on you, however it, you may be able to buy. In general, farm farms will be of much more use to you in the future work of the whole family. As you need a farm, you must be sure the size of your family. The size of your family will mean to you from 5,000 to 20,000 dollars and more, but they are the best on which to build work and good management you can make a living. You have land as which is given through crop in stable you to pay up-of prices don't fall too low as they did after the last war and if weather and seasons don't get too bad.

If you need some material to help you make up your mind whether to become a farmer, or if you want to study housing like Joseph Pennington, it's time to get acquainted with your own United States Armed Forces Institute. The institute will offer in addition to a general orientation course in farming, such as agricultural education in Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Georgia, Tennessee, Ohio and Idaho, Pennsylvania and Minnesota in farm. Correspondence courses in farming may also be taken from agricultural colleges that have working arrangements with the Institute. For more information write to the United States Armed Forces Institute of Education, Washington or get in touch with your Regional Service Officer. Remember, the various land offers will not be available from the Institute until late this year or early in 1947. Also an increase will be made to late war or all of the cost for a lot of two dollars.

Get acquainted, too, with the Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges as the service agencies that deal in farm lands, the country in which you want to farm, while income farmer at home and to your quality agricultural area. There's a country agent for most agricultural communities the United States and they may be very helpful. From the Department of Agriculture in Washington you can get much material to use that's the farmer's about that Farm Plan for Living in their Suggestions in Prospective Farmers in Farming. Selecting a Farm, Many Pages of Farming in America, with its pictures and illustrations on practically any farm subject. They will be helpful and more general use from understanding of the farm structure beginning farmers are most likely to make it.

league pro football conference. Now that it has become big business, the NFL has the National League down 235,000. Last year it played to 1,600,000. And the movement has recently been larger.

But pro football has made a big way since September 16, 1939, when voters were asked to decide if the game should be moved to Chicago. Due to Joe Thayer, the big leader, formed the American American Professional Football Association, later to be called the National League. The price of a franchise was placed at 120,000 dollars and after a year began. During the season, now the president of the NFL, Louis Brown, made the Detroit franchise for 60 dollars and gave it to him. Tim Mara and William Halas bought the New York rights for 2,000 dollars. Bert Bell secured the Detroit franchise from Arthur J. Altmeyer by paying the debt of 2,000 dollars. Under a franchise costs 50,000 dollars and Fred A. Harrel, 27, paid 225,000 dollars for the Detroit team, including players.

It is not surprising that that serious eyes have been cast on pro football with its possibilities of big profits on relatively small investments. However, as a league with other things in the National League, to succeed without a big victory. This is more for the other league, possibly two more, but the other game is not about to yield without a battle. The National League is not in a position to win who knows the rules. The idea is to get from the other rule and to make it two changes that will make the pro game. They brought the rule back to the goal line and permitted a forward run from any place behind the line of scrimmage.

The first added in the change. The second change led in the famous "Bank Pass," from Frankie Noguera to Red Hovell. Suddenly, 230 points after scored the ball himself as he took a look and passed it to Hovell, one of the Detroit game roomers of the rule. As a result the Bears established all professional records.

Encouraged by the success, the game quickly accepted other innovations in play and speed up the game. They introduced the shotgun line 50 yards from the center, moving the ball into that spot as it is seen on the offense could run in both ends. They even altered the rule on fumbles. This year a pro club is paid for a yard every time it looks out of bounds and a team must kick off and the ball is returned to the offense. The rule makers also cut down the referee penalty on a second forward pass to allow

how pilot and rear gunner of a dive bomber team up for attack

1 Only fifteen minutes before that Jap carrier was sighted, we stubbed out our cigarettes (yeah, Camels) and smiled into the back-to-back cockpits of the Dauntless. Did I say smiled? Smooth! Now, target sighted. Then came the pull-off and the dive.

2 Down... Down... Down! The Nip planes couldn't get a shot in... yet. But wait! They have their longies. Waaa! That ack-ack! Filthy stuff. Green-black, deadly. Shrapnel and tracers tear the sky apart. But—luck holds. No vital spot touched. And... bombs away!

3 The pull-out... and the climb. Our rear guys start bulking—and, brother, don't think those twin-shirtees aren't ripping! Saved 'em around. Slug it out. Hot lead is the only weapon at a time like that when you're practically down on the enemy's deck. That acks shoutin'. And... well, we don't want to brag, but look at the Navy's reward!

CAMEL'S
OUR CIGARETTE.
SUITS THE THROAT AND THE TASTE
TO A T

HOW COME that from Guam to Germany you keep hearing "They suit me to a T"? Well, try Camel's mildness, coolness, and kindness on your own throat. Try the rich, full flavor of Camel's peerless blend of costlier tobaccos on your own taste. See what your own "T-Zone"—that's T for Taste and T for Throat—tells you about this favorite-of-millions cigarette. Could be that you, too, will be saying "Camel's my cigarette—suits me to a T!"
